Women To Be Housed In Hepburn

Temporary Change Made In Trustees Meeting Last Saturday

ENROLLMENT OF MEN DECREASED

Hepburn hall will be used as a dormitory for women next year, it was decided at a meeting of the college trustees held Saturday May 10. The reason for this change in housing is clarified by the following statement issued by the Board of Trustees:

May 10, 1941

In order to secure improved and additional facilities for the women of Middlebury College, it was voted by the Board of Trustees at their spring meeting to loan temporarily for the use of women students, one of the dormitories hitherto devoted to men and to discontinue for the present the use of two of the temporary women's dormitories. Hepburn Hall has been chosen for this purpose in view of its adaptability without radical change. This move has been made possible by the greatly increased facilities for men due to the erection of Gifford hall.

In commenting upon the change, President Moody made the following statement yesterday morning:

"We regret this step very much and we would not take it if we could find any alternative. An alternative would be to lower our requirements which we have endeavoured for years to establish. The problem which confronts any educational institution at a time of emergency like this when so many factors are unknown and can't be estimated, is very great. In the midst of our perplexities however, there is one sobering realization, and that is, that older and greater institutions of learning in many parts of the world have ceased to exist; we hope and expect temporarily."

For the past several years the proportion of men to women has been limited in part by the housing accomodations available for women. Considerable increased capacity for men was

Dramatic Awards Given Friday Night

Ten Seniors Honored For Play Production Work And Acting Excellence

Following the second performance of "Gold in the Hills" given at the Lyceum last Friday night, ten members of the senior class received dramatic awards.

The awards, consisting of the Masque and the Shingle, are made annually to persons who have shown outstanding ability in dramatic work, including all phases of play production as well as actual acting. Prof. V. Spencer Goodreds presented the awards and gave a brief account of each person's achievements.

The Shingles award is a dramatics diploma and the Masque is a gold pendant containing the masque of comedy and the masque of tragedy. This latter is an award given for exceptional work in dramatics.

Although acting ability was an important factor in choosing people for the awards, it was not the only ground on which Masque and Shingle members were chosen.

Receiving both the Masque and the Shingle were Robert L. deVeer and Lucia D. Powell while the Shingle award was presented to James H. Cassedy, Marshall B. Cline, Harold M. Hotaling, Leroy F. Hovey, Janet L. Lang, E. Barbara Lown, Margaret A. Waller and Elizabeth F. Wolfington.

Six Full Tuition Scholarships Given To Outstanding Vermont Applicants

Six Vermont scholarships were awarded Monday evening by Pres. Paul D. Moody.

Those receiving the scholarships were Albert C. Smith Jr., Stowe; Robert G. Chadwick, Montpelier; John J. McGarry, Rutland; Philip H. Dunham, Brattleboro; Edward A. Mumford, St. Johnsbury; and Robert C. Joy of Proctor. Those who were chosen as alternates are David M. Otis, Burlington; Robert J. Hunziker, Poultney; Francis W. Jeffords, Williamstown, and Carroll M. Pike, Stowe.

The forty-one candidates for these scholarships were interviewed Monday afternoon and evening by Mr. William G. Craig, assistant director of admissions for men, Dr. Stewart Ross of Rutland, President Moody, Dean John H. Patterson and Mr. Edgar J. Wiley, director of admissions and personnel.

Smith will graduate from Stowe high school in June. In high school he went out for soccer, baseball, basketball and skiing. He was editor of the school paper, president of the student council and has been president and treasurer of his class. His musical activities include the glee club, the quartet and the state music festival.

Mumford attended St. Johnsbury academy where he was president of the student council and was on the varsity basketball and football teams. He went out for baseball and held a class office in his sophomore year. In the Montpelier high school Chadwick was a member of the football team for two years. He was assistant editor of his high school's yearbook and went out for debating. He also played the lead in a school play.

McGarry, from Rutland high school, played varsity basketball and varsity baseball. He also took part in the school dramatics. Dunham graduates from Brattleboro high school this June. He was a letterman in tennis and hockey and was a member of the basketball and ski squads. Dunham was business manager of the school magazine and played in the band and school orchestra for four years. He received the honor award for scholastic and extra-curricular activities in his junior year.

Graduating from Proctor high school, Joy has gone out for football and tennis and is editor of the school paper. He has taken part in the senior play and the operetta, as well as being a member of the glee club, orchestra and band.

Alternates

From the four alternates, David M. Otis, graduating from Burlington high school, was editor of the school paper, and a member of the glee club, Latin club and the student council. Hunziker comes from Poultney high school where he was a member of the rifle club and on the yearbook staff. Jeffords is from Williamstown high school, where he played basketball and took part in several plays as well as being a member of the glee club. Pike, graduating from Stowe high school, is president of the senior class, and a member of the student council, the ski team and glee club.

Reactions

The men waited from two in the afternoon until nine thirty in the evening to hear who had received these scholarships. The recipients of these fourteen hundred dollar awards varied in their reactions from feeling "My knees fold up under me" to a simple amazed "I don't know." All ten men agreed they were "surprised."

Stanwood F. Johnson New President; Fifth Vote Distribution Wins Election

Preferential Balloting Enables Victor To Overcome Early Lead Of Smith, Wood and Yeomans In Undergraduate Elections

SUCCESSOR TO HICKS WINS BY 33 VOTES

Last night in Mead Memorial chapel, the men's student body of Middlebury College elected Stanwood F. Johnson '42 as president of the Undergraduate association. Johnson will succeed John H. Hicks '42, president during the year 1940-41.

Voting was done on a preferential basis which means that the value of second and third votes became the dominant feature of an election which saw Johnson behind at first, only to rise as the votes for the other men were distributed among those candidates who remained in the running, overcoming the continual lead of David K. Smith.

As the first ballots were cast Smith, A. Wilson Wood, Edward Yeomans and Johnson led the remainder of their opponents, with the name of Kenneth E. Cosgrove being dropped since he obtained the fewest number of votes. When Cosgrove's ballots were distributed, the majority of them went to Yeomans, but when those of David Emmons were split up among the remaining men, Johnson and Wood derived the greatest number of ballots, but both of them still trailed Smith.

It was at this point that the name of Yeomans was dropped from the list, and the distribution boosted Johnson within three votes of Smith, with Wood falling behind.

But Smith still led, and it remained to the distribution of Wood's votes to decide the final outcome of the election. Close as the race may have been the final tally swung heavily to Johnson and he garnered just about twice the total that Smith did, and brought about the total of 195 votes for Johnson and 162 votes for Smith.

The election of Johnson to this position climaxes what could be termed a very successful college career. Earlier this year he received the captaincy of the varsity hockey team, and his name was included among those who were recently tapped for the Blue Key society. His athletic activities center mainly on hockey, but he also worked for two years as a tryout for the managership of varsity football, and he will manage the frosh team for the coming season.

William A. T. Cassedy '41, John H. Hicks '41, Stephen H. Arnold '42, David W. Emmons, John W. Zydik '42, Edward T. Peach '42, and John P. Urban '44 composed the committee of election officials who conducted the balloting in a prompt and efficient manner. The ballots were carefully examined, and no evidence of combination voting was discovered.

Blue Key Honors Twenty-One Men In Chapel Friday

Tapping from the three upper classes, Blue Key society increased its membership by twenty-one members last Friday, May 9, in the ceremony performed in Chapel.

Those chosen were William J. Bursaw Jr. '41, John B. Crawford '41, John Talbott '41, Vernon M. Wright '41, Frederick R. Bates '42, Robert W. Bredenburg '42, Wilson F. Clark '42, Kenneth E. Cosgrove '42, Stanwood F. Johnson '42, Wilfred T. Ouimette '42, John S. Prukop '42, Charles L. Sanford '42, Howard A. Schlieder Jr. '42, David K. Smith '42, Dwight F. Smith '42, Ira P. Townsend '42, Anthony W. Wishinski '42, M. Scott Eakeley '43, Donald I. Gale '43, Thomas H. Turner '43, and Edward E. Shea '43.

John M. Nugent '41, president, stated the aims and regulations of the society in a short talk to the student body.

Selection of members is based on leadership qualities and a scholastic average of at least seventy-five per cent. Membership is limited to four seniors, fifteen juniors, and five sophomores.

President Moody Deems Coffee Shop Suggestion Worthy Of Consideration

In answer to a letter to the CAMPUS, and also to a student petition, Pres. Paul D. Moody spoke in chapel Thursday about a proposed student coffee shop.

The need for "some sort of a student coffee shop" was expressed in the letter in the CAMPUS, and it was suggested that it be located on campus. The observation was also made that such an establishment would provide a means of income for some deserving students. Starr hall, Hepburn hall, Hamlin hall, Old Chapel, and also a wing of Gifford hall were named as possible locations.

Action on this problem was contemplated with the completion of Gifford Commons, but Hepburn was not vacated until too late in the year. The present world crisis, and the corresponding rise in food prices which is sure to follow, is another reason why President Moody was uncertain about immediate action. He also brought up the point that the merchants in town would feel that it was cutting in on their profits. But Dr. Moody said the college is run for the good of the college students, not for the merchants downtown.

President Moody closed his short discussion of the topic by saying that it would be best to drop the matter until next year when it will be easier to make definite plans.

Blizard Is Elected Senior President

Eakeley And Davis Chosen As Leaders For Junior And Sophomore Classes

As a result of the elections of class officers of the men's college held last evening from 6:30 to 8:00 in the Mead Memorial chapel, Frank D. Blizard was chosen to lead next year's seniors as class president.

Also on the preferential ballot of eight nominees, Dwight F. Smith was elected to the vice-presidential office, Charles S. Beach was named secretary, and Robert S. Maxwell was voted in to fill the post of treasurer.

At the same elections, the junior class kept most of their former leaders in office with the election of Scott Eakeley, as president, Edward T. Peach as vice-president, and the reelection of William R. Engesser as secretary. The treasurer's office went to S. Peter Nikitas who will replace Edward E. Shea. Peach and Eakeley are now serving as president and vice president respectively of the present sophomore class.

The class of 1944 elevated Paul D. Davis from his present office to the presidency of next year's sophomores. Outgoing President John R. Urban also remained a class officer by his election to the post of vice-president. Harold H. Hollister will be the secretary of the class and Horace J. DePodwin was selected to serve in the capacity of treasurer.

According to John H. Hicks, retiring president of the Undergraduate association, and one of the election officials, the first few counts of the preferential ballots showed a close race for the presidency of all three classes. As the candidates receiving the least number of votes were eliminated one by one, the trends developed which were increased steadily during the final counts so that a conclusive choice was made in each case.

Hain Will Appear In Concert Tonight

Noted Tenor, Accompanied By Schlussel, Will Close Entertainment Program

William Hain, the noted American tenor, will sing at the Middlebury high school auditorium this evening at 8:15 p. m. This is the last in a series of concerts and lectures sponsored by the college this year.

Mr. Hain will be accompanied here by Sanford Schlussel. From Middlebury the famous singer is to go to Montreal to rehearse under Sir Thomas Beecham for their festival.

Mr. Hain sang Bach's "B Minor Mass" with the Boston Symphony orchestra under Koussevitsky last summer. The past February he was selected by Albert Stoessel to fill the tenor soloist position with the New York Oratorio society. He has also appeared with the New York Philharmonic, the Cleveland orchestra, and the Schola Cantorum of New York.

For the past five years Mr. Hain has been with several light opera companies and has made numerous recordings. He has sung leading roles for the New York Opera Comique. He was placed in leading parts in the successful New York productions of "Roberta" and "Du Barry," appearing opposite Grace Moore in the latter.

FRENCH CLUB WILL SEE CINEMA MAY 20

At an open meeting of the French club next Tuesday evening, May 20, at 8:00 o'clock, Dr. Stephen A. Freeman will show the French film, "La Kermesse Heroique," (Carnival in Flanders). This four-star foreign movie was awarded the Grand Prix du Cinema Francais and the Gold medal of the Venice International exposition in Cinematography.

"Carnival in Flanders," considered one of the best foreign pictures ever released in this country, is a comedy set in the Flemish town of Boom in 1616. When a troop of Spanish soldiers invade the town and quarter themselves for the night, the natives are frantic. But the wife of the burgomaster rallies the women and plans a different reception for the soldiers.

The costumes and settings are historically accurate since as much detail as possible was authenticated from the existing prints of Breughel, Frans Hals, Rembrandt, and Jan Steen. The love story running through the film concerns the young painter Breughel. The cast includes Francoise Rosay, Jean Murat, and Louis Jouvet.

The charge of admission is twenty cents and the meeting is open to all.

THINGS COULD BE WORSE

Compromises are seldom satisfactory and the compromise action of the trustees meeting last Saturday was probably not arrived at with the expectation of complete satisfaction in mind. In keeping with the times, the trustees were faced with necessity rather than satisfaction. The first and most normal reaction on the part of the men's college will undoubtedly be one of resentment at the encroachment upon one of their favorite dormitories.

These are the problems that faced the trustees and the only possible solution seemed to be the temporary use of Hepburn hall by the womens' college.

1. In common with every other institution of higher learning in the country, Middlebury will suffer some decrease in the enrollment of the men's college. It would be impossible to predict this decrease but only to point out that with conscription, well paying paying jobs in defense industries and the general unsettled state of affairs, men won't be returning to college next fall in the same numbers as they were this year. Thus, the college stands to suffer some financial loss through tuition.

2. The college, is already a little out of proportion, there being more men than women. If the enrollment of the men's and women's colleges were brought into balance, it would serve to compensate for the expected drop in the men's college.

3. But if the balance were to be arrived at by increasing the size of the womens college, the problem of housing them had to be faced. The situation of women rooming off-campus also has to be considered.

4. Men's dormitories show little promise of being completely filled next year. Gifford Memorial Hall for Boys couldn't very well be turned over to the women within six months of its dedication. Painter hall, the oldest men's dormitory in the state, could not serve adequately as a womens dormitory. Neither could Starr.

The men's college will probably feel for many months to come that their domain has been trespassed upon. A certain amount of grumbling will be inevitable. But if we will try to stop and realize all of the factors involved it is doubtful whether a better solution could be offered from the undergraduate body. If this is the worst inconvenience that we will have to put up with during the next few years we may consider ourselves fortunate. —D. F. S.

HEPBURN VOTED TO HOUSE WOMEN

Temporary Change Made In Trustees Meeting

made available by the construction of Gifford Hall. During the period of the present emergency it did not seem feasible to attempt to use this additional capacity for men. Turning over Hepburn to women affords an opportunity to improve the minimum standard of accommodations for women, and at the same time makes it possible to increase slightly the enrollment of girls, with a view of more nearly balancing the proportion of men and women in college, at the same time compensate for the possible slight decline in the number of men due to the present emergency. At the present time the number of men exceeds the number of women by more than seventy. Thirty-two additional women students will be accommodated in Hepburn, and this will result in an approximate balance in numbers between men and women, even if the men's enrollment should decline next fall by virtue of national defense requirements by as much at 10%. Hillside and Hillcrest cottages will be closed.

Youth Movements Harmful Only to Thoughtless, Says Student

To the Editor of the CAMPUS:

In reading your last week's editorial, I find that you have brought to light some of the latest methods of youth movements. You have confined the investigation to the methods and have not entered the discussion of what these different organizations stand for. This is a wise move on your part; for to attempt to influence student opinion, especially from the editorial page, is what leads to "endorsement of people who let other people do their thinking."

But I would like to look a little deeper into the editorial, not as to the motives behind it, but to the spirit that pervades it. You call for the sanctity of thought and decision, and I agree with you. You say that Middlebury wants to do its own thinking. Perchance you mistake complacency for thinking.

The object of the organization to which you refer is to make students think in a particular way. If the student had previously made up his mind, I doubt that this organization had much influence on him. But, and let me emphasize this: if the student had not made up his mind, he was fair prey to this or any other organization. The danger does not lie in any band of ardent organizers. It lies in an unthinking populace.

And lastly, how are we going to get people to do their own thinking. Certainly, not by witch hunting a harmless one man organization, but by a sincere and thorough campaign to acquaint student minds with the need for thought, fairness, and responsibility. There is no such thing as an intellectual "armed neutrality".

Ralph Crawshaw '43

"Witch-hunting a harmless one-man organization" is an activity in which the CAMPUS takes no pleasure. We thoroughly agree that this particular one-man organization is entirely harmless.—Ed.

OPINIONS OF THE WEEK

Do you think that a convoy system would be for the best interest of the United States?

It all depends on what on considers our "best interest." This has already been decided for us, not by us, it seems. We are to defend our economic stake, there is no doubt. What can we do about it now? The United States has stuck her chin out and it seems as though she's got to keep it there. But what about us, the many of us, who see the United States in another role? I have no faith in war; there is no ideal in it. War never solves anything. It seems hopeless to hope!

Barbara York '42

I think it would be for the best interests of the United States because so much war material which she is now sending to Great Britain is being lost for lack of convoy. If the British don't receive the necessary war materials, their defeat is almost certain and British defeat would seemingly mean eventual war and certain defeat for the United States.

Lesley Wilson '44

I think a convoy system is a necessary evil if we want England to win this war. Whether we should have one or not depends, I think, on how far we believe the fate of England is bound up with ours. If a convoy system is the only means by which we can enable England to win, I say we should have one for our own ultimate protection, despite the fact that its probable consequences are only too obvious.

Ruth L. Carpenter '41

Convoying ships is against the best interests of the United States because it is a measure which when put into practice, holds many possibilities of getting the United States into war, for which we are not fully prepared. Until we are really prepared to take on the consequences of this measure we ought to remember that, despite some losses we have been delivering goods in England.

Margaret B. Whittlesey '41

Yes. When it is considered that the inability of American democracy and German nazism to cooperate will eventually lead to war, there is little reason for not taking the risk which the use of convoys might entail.

Harold H. Hollister '44

Present use of the convoy system will undoubtedly serve the interests of our "all-out aid to Britain" policy. On the other hand, it is not all compatible with the administration's declared policy of keeping out of war. The question resolves itself to a definition of "the best interests of the United States."

Donald E. Chapman '41

Yes. Our primary interest is the maintenance of our democracy, which is directly dependent upon the preservation of the democratic ideals in England. The inevitability of our eventual involvement anyway, makes the question of risk inconsequential.

Charles L. Sanford '42

No, I do not favor the use of convoys. It is evident that such action would be a definte step towards war and in my opinion, war is not compatible with the best interests of the United States or of the world.

Panhellenic Discusses Reunions, Scholarship, Autumn Sorority Sports

At a meeting of the Panhellenic council last Wednesday at 3:45 p. m. in Pearsons living room, the members discussed the new and old business that was brought before the council.

The president, Grace E. Barry '42, announced that the reunions of sorority women during Junior Week would be held on Sunday from 3 to 4:30 p. m.

The council voted to continue the work that Panhellenic has sponsored in connection with the Young America Wants to Help committee. Miss Barry will be in charge of these knitting projects until the end of this year.

Plans for inter-sorority sports, which were discussed at the last meeting of the council, have been accepted by Dean Eleanor S. Ross and are being arranged so that after-dinner games and contests can begin in the early fall.

Houses Entertain Breakfast Guests Saturday Morning

Tug O'War, Steeplechase And Baseball Will All Be Featured

Saturday, the second day of Junior Week, will start with fraternity breakfasts and end with fraternity informals and will have the tug-o-war, steeplechase, Norwich baseball game and Norwich tennis matches betweeen.

Starting at 9:00 a. m. breakfast-dates will begin at the fraternity houses and will last until 10 o'clock. These breakfast dates have been an annual contribution to Saturday's festivities. Up until two years ago, the Variety Show was always held the Friday evening preceding, but last year, with the abolishment of it, the Prom was moved up. The breakfast-dates suffered a natural decline in attendance, for only the hardiest get up for a 9:00 a. m. date, after retiring somewhere around the vicinity of 3:00 o'clock the same morning.

At eleven, the annual tug-o-war between the freshmen and the sophomores is scheduled to take place at Porter pond. Last year the class of '43 lost the struggle and have vowed they would make up for the humiliating defeat this year.

Field Events

Immediately following this event, the grueling steeple-chase will be held around Porter field's environs. Stanwood F. Johnson '42, in charge of the steeple-chase, has announced that it will start on the football field, continue out through the marsh, the pond, and back on the field again. Contestants will pair up at the beginning of the race. At the half way mark, however, each man will be on his own. The class placing the most men will be adjudged the winner. Further plans are to be held secret until the morning of the race.

The steeple-chase has gained considerable recognition and popularity since it was first featured as a part of Junior Week a few years ago. Now it is regarded as one of the highlights of the week-end. Two years ago, Richard C. Davis won individual honors by placing first. Stanwood F. Johnson, this year's chairman of that particular event, was the winner last year.

Athletic Attractions

In the afternoon, guests will be entertained by two athletic attractions. On the baseball diamond the Middlebury nine will play host to Norwich university, while the tennis teams of the two schools meet on the courts.

Informal dances will be held at the fraternity houses during the evening. All dances will be open house.

MOUNTAIN CLUB SENDS SEVEN DELEGATES TO I.O.C.A. SPRING PARLEY

Seven delegates from the Middlebury college Mountain club were guests at the annual spring conference of the Intercollegiate Outing club association held at Richmond, Mass., on May 9, 10, and 11. Vassar college was host to the representatives of the forty-one other college outing clubs.

Middlebury's delegation was the second largest representation. Those who attended from Middlebury were David K. Smith '42, newly elected Mountain club president, Wilson F. Clark '42, Margaret A. Fell '42, S. Carol Hartman '43, Paul E. Crocker '44, Alfred G. Boissevin '44, and Emory P. Mersereau '44.

The conference was opened Friday evening, and the representatives saw motion pictures of the different member clubs. Saturday morning was given over to discussions of different problems which confront outing clubs. On Saturday afternoon the delegates had an outing on Mount Greylock. Dr. John Bates of Cornell university gave a short lecture Saturday evening in which he compared mountain hikers of today with the Indians of the past. An old-fashioned barn dance was held Saturday evening. The business meeting of the IOCA was held Sunday morning.

The IOCA will again have an Adirondack trip in the fall when Mount Holyoke college will be host to the association. Plans were also made to hold the next spring conference at Dartmouth college. This conference will commemorate the tenth anniversary of the organization which was started at Dartmouth.

Step Singing On Sunday Evening Will Conclude Junior Week Competition

Campus Organizations To Compete in Annual Song Contest

Step-singing, the annual Junior Week competition and the last event of the weekend, will be held on the steps of Mead Memorial chapel at 7:30 p. m. Sunday evening.

Each fraternity and sorority on campus and a newcomer to the competition this year, the neutral women, will sing two songs, one of which must be a fraternity or sorority song. Trophies of identical silver cups will be presented to the two groups placing first. Selection of the winners is based on appropriateness, appearance and singing ability, and will be done by a committee of three which is as yet unannounced.

KDR's Out To Repeat

The songsters of Kappa Delta Rho, under the leadership of Laurence D. Gagnier '43 will be out to surpass their performance of last year, which won them the trophy. In last year's women's competition, the singing of the Delta Delta Delta girls was adjudged the best. A feature of their attempt to retain the title will be the rendition of a number written by one of their own members. Margaret E. Woods '42 has composed the song, "Choice", especially for the occasion.

Alpha Sigma Phi, "Our Brotherhood" and "John Peel"; Beta Kappa, "Beta Kappa Onward" and "Hoodah Day"; Delta Kappa Epsilon, "Sons of DKE" and "We Love Thee Truly"; Delta Upsilon, "Beneath the Gold and Blue" and "Song of the Vagabonds"; Kappa Delta Rho, "We're Gathered Here Together Boys" and "Panther Song;" Sigma Alpha, "The Red and White Fraternity" and "Go Down, Moses"; Sigma Phi Epsilon, "Vespers Hymn" and "Now the Day is Over" are the songs chosen by the fraternities for the occasion.

Songs Listed

Songs selected by the sororities are: Alpha Xi Delta, "Above the Gold and Blue of Alpha Xi" and "Oh No, John"; Delta Delta Delta, "Inspiration Song" and "Choice", an original song prepared by Margaret E. Woods '42; Kappa Delta, "Kappa Delta Blues" and "Fulfillment"; Kappa Kappa Gamma, "Kappa Medley" and "We Sing to Thee, Dear Kappa Gamma written by Patricia V. Rogers '43,; Phi Mu, "Phi Mu Castle" and "Twinkle Song"; Pi Beta Phi, "Whistle Song" and "Speed Thee, My Arrow"; Sigma Kappa, "Sing, Sister, Sing" and "Here's to the Sigma Kaps"; Gold Cane (neutral women), "Challenge Song" and "Old Hungarian Round."

On Mead Chapel Steps

Robert B. Rivel '42 and Mary L. Eimer '42, co-chairmen of step-singing, have announced that the fraternities and sororities will appear in the following order: Sigma Alpha, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Delta Delta Delta, Beta Kappa, Phi Mu Sigma Phi Epsilon, Pi Beta Phi, Alpha Sigma Phi, Alpha Xi Delta, Delta Upsilon, Kappa Delta, Chi Psi, Sigma Kappa, Kappa Delta Rho and the Gold Cane.

As in previous years, the step-singing is scheduled to take place on the steps of Mead chapel with the understanding that the contest will be held inside the chapel in case of inclement weather.

David B. Schaub Plays Music by Bach, Franck In Organ Recital Sunday

Under the sponsorship of the music department, Mr. David B. Schaub of Boston made his first appearance in Middlebury in an organ recital which was held on Sunday evening, May 11, at 7:30 p. m. in Mead Memorial chapel.

The first group of selections which he played were all compositions of Johann Sebastian Bach. "Toccata in F Major" was his opening number. Then he played "Come, Redeemer of our Race," and "Christ Came to Jordan." The final selection in the group was "Fantasia and Fugue in C Minor."

The second and final group of compositions were written by Cesar Franck. The "Chorale in A Minor" was the first offering in this group. Next he played "Pastorale," and "Piece Heroique" was the final selection of the evening's performance.

Mr. Schaub is a graduate student at Harvard university and has gained considerable recognition around New England for his ability of playing difficult organ pieces, particularly those which made up his program here. This was the first of a new type of concert series sponsored by Prof. H. Ward Bedford.

Proms Of Past Compared With Friday's Dance

"In 1917, the Junior Prom was a more formal affair then it is today. There was more smoking than you see today, too," said Darrell D. Butterfield, better known at "Buddy," in recalling earlier Junior Weeks for the CAMPUS today.

"I guess you might say that the men were more by themselves, although they took the girls to the Prom. There was more competition among the men. They weren't always chasing after the women, like today."

Just as he was saying this, Buddy happened to glance out of his shop and see a couple strolling past the Sigma Alpha house, and it was easy to see they were on good terms. "See that? Well, if a fella did that in my day, know what we'd do? Why, we'd throw him in the fountain."

Just as he was saying this, Buddy claimed that Junior Week costs were much less than they are today. The fellow who spent ten dollars was a plutocrat. It wasn't until the roaring twenties that Junior Week costs began to skyrocket, during which time an expense of twenty dollars was only a step in the right direction.

"You never saw a girl take a drink in those days, either, or look as if she had a drink. Of course, it isn't bad today, when compared with the twenties."

On the whole, the Junior Prom and the events of Junior Week were much the same as they are today, we gathered. There was the same haggling for suitable orchestras—only big-name bands as such weren't known in those days. The Prom was more formal than it is today, and a fellow wearing a tux was not allowed on the dance floor. Full dress was the rule, and the rules were followed.

Melodrama Is Success As Revival

Playhouse Audience Finds "Gold In The Hills" Entertaining

By Frank W. Cady

If Y. K. W. could only come back again from his ghostly home to criticize this play, it might be adequately treated as entertainment. He would enlarge upon the villainy of the villain, the detectiveness of the detective, and the pathos of the heroine and would expatriate upon the suffering brought down upon the old father by his misunderstanding of the situation, and by the pathetic songs for which he yearned. He would have gloried in that high moment in the action when the distressed and persecuted Nell told the expectant audience that lips which touched liquor would never touch hers But all this cannot be. Y. K. W. is gone from us and sobriety must take the place of levity; the seriousness of the critic must match the seriousness of the play. The real moral of the play, that virtue will always be rewarded and villainy always thwarted, must never be forgotten.

One of pleasant things about the production was the way in which each member of the cast rose effectively to the possibilities of his part, and played with a complete understanding of its serious and burlesque aspects. Their blending was perfect. The audience also took its part effectively, hissing when hissing was due, and passing peanuts with discrimination. The tomatoes, however, were not a welcome addition to the scenery. Throwing them was, doubtless, only an example of untamed freshman exuberance, or overdone sophomoric emotion. Although directed toward the villain, it is certain there was nothing personal involved. But it was not a thing to be proud of.

The songs between the acts were no small part of the entertainment. The program was so confused one even had to guess who was singing and what was being sung. In spite of that, those old ballads went straight to the heart, or the midriff, they were sung so resolutely and with such abandon.

The make-up and costuming were particularly well done, especially Hiram Stanley's, Richard Murgatroyed's, Sam Slade's, and the gorgeous ensemble which was called Mike Slattery. The rain-bow had nothing on him.

The Middlebury Lyceum, erstwhile the college Playhouse, is to be congratulated upon a highly successful Grand Revival! May its successes continue!

NEW FRENCH CLUB ROSTER RELEASED

New members of the French club were announced on Monday. They attended their first meeting last night, an open meeting at which a movie was shown.

The new members, all from the freshman class are Nettie J. Allebach, Harriet A. Bartels, B. Rose Baruzzi, Mildred A. Brandner, Rosamond Burleigh, Louise L. Dana, Helen E. De Rosa, Fiammetta C. Donati, Shirley L. Earl, Leonore V. Jenkins, Jean V. Ledden, Harriet A. Lindenberger, Mary E. Maurice, Miriam E. Oaks, Doris A. Orth, Marjorie K. Palmer, Elizabeth N. Thompson, Jean C. Voss, Mary E. Whitney, Grace A. Wickenden.

Those who were selected applied for membership on a regular type of application blank on which they determined cation blank on which they demonstrated their ability at writing the French language. The best applications were used by the president of the club, Evelyn G. Parent '41, as a basis for appointing the new members.

PROM QUEEN NOMINEES

College To Select 1942 Prom Queen

Student Vote Taken Today In Chapel On Candidates Chosen By Fraternities

Mary C. Brehaut, Margaret D. Buscher, Joan L. Calley, Virginia S. Poole, Virginia W. Witte, and Margaret E. Woods are the fraternity nominations from the junior class for this year's Junior Prom queen who will be selected by the student body today in chapel.

The queen chosen today will be formally crowned the night of the Prom by Philip W. Rifenberg '42, Junior Week co-chairman. The name of the queen and the details of the ceremony are being withheld until then.

Last year's sovereign was selected from a group of four candidates by orchestra leader Mal Hallet. This method was rejected this year in favor of a vote by the student body. The reason for the change was that the Junior Week co-chairmen, Rifenberg and Miss Woods feel that beauty alone shouldn't determine the selection of the Prom queen and the orchestra leader doesn't know the girls' other qualifications—personality, school record etc. The college men and women know the nominee and are in a better position to select a queen.

Nominations were made by the men's fraternities, each of whom submitted the names of four junior women to the Junior Week co-chairmen. Rifenberg selected the six girls who had the highest number of nominations as candidates.

UNDERCLASSES TO HOLD PICNICS SOON

Plans have been made this year by both the sophomore and freshman classes to hold class picnics. The freshmen will hold theirs on Thursday May 15, as a part of their Junior Week activities, while the sophomore picnic will take place Monday, June 2, on Chipman hill.

College To Publish Book On Bread Loaf Theater

"The Bread Loaf Book of Plays," a collection of plays produced at the Little Theatre of the Bread Loaf School of English and a companion volume to "The Bread Loaf Anthology," will be published by the Middlebury College Press within three weeks.

This collection is edited by Miss Hortense Moore, assistant professor of speech at Ohio Wesleyan, and contains six of the outstanding plays produced under her direction by the Little Theatre during the past twelve years. Full production notes and stage directions are provided, and illustrations include actual photographs of original stage settings and scenes.

The plays in this book are: "The Widow; or Who Wins" a nineteenth century English farce by John Till Allingham, and Frederic Lansing Day's dramatization of "The Fall of the House of Usher," for both of which musical settings are included; Miss Moore's dramatizations of Robert Frost's poem "Snow" and of "Noah and His Sons," a medieval miracle play; "Happy the Bride," a modern one-act comedy by Raymond F. Bosworth; and "Gruach," a poetic play about the meeting and elopement of MacBeth and Lady MacBeth by Gordon Bottomley.

KDR Wins Debating Cup For Largest Attendance

Defeating the Beta Kappas, runner-ups, by having an audience of six more people, Kappa Delta Rho has won the inter-fraternity award for attendance at Middlebury debates.

The debate attendance contest is designed to stimulate an interest in Middlebury debating on the part of the student body. Each fraternity and the neutral body is assigned to a debate and each is responsible for the attendance of that evening.

The date for the presentation of the individual awards for excellence in debating has not been set definitely, but will probably come within the next two weeks.

President Of Wesleyan College Gives Year's Last Sunday Chapel Address

Pres. James McConaughy Urges Student Body To Uphold Own Convictions

"Not a sermon, but a talk" was presented last Sunday by Dr. James L. McConaughy, president of Wesleyan college, who has given the vespers addresses many times in Middlebury.

Taking his inspiration from the Apocrypha, Dr. McConaughy used as his central theme the quotation, "As gold is tried in fire, so acceptable men are tried in the furnace of adversity."

"The strains and difficulties of the years to come will be entirely unlike those of our predecessors," said Dr. McConaughy, as he predicted that out of the graduating classes of 1941 in many colleges and universities, a great number of men will be wearing the uniform the United States within a few months.

He further developed his theme by reference to that well-known malady, spring fever, which affects most college students. The final test is just around the corner, with "difficult problems and examinations" to confront most students.

In speaking of those "tried in the furnace of adversity," Dr. McConaughy referred to Nathan Hale, the famous Yale graduate who served his country in the Revolutionary war, and to Joan of Arc who "left an imprint on the pages of the history of France and the world which no fire could obliterate."

He offered two suggestions to his audience. The first was that it is important that every college student has, and stands by his own convictions. He claims that too many Americans in the colleges and universities graduate without convictions and without knowing what they believe. Dr. McConaughy's second offering was that everyone should realize that Christianity is "not a religion of an easy-going people" and told his audience that "intangible and spiritual things should mean more to us."

In closing, Dr. McConaughy paid a high compliment to those students who work their way through college and considers that these students have an advantage over those without financial difficulties because they don't have "to learn how to take it."

His theme was again mentioned in a parting phrase. The man "tried in the furnace of adversity must pay a debt never owed."

The conclusion of Dr. McConaughy's address brings the weekly vespers services to a close and they will be dispensed with for the final three Sundays of this college year. Next week being Junior week, will in some measure replace their absence, when the annual sorority and fraternity stepsinging will be held.

St. Mikes Wins 9-7; UVM Blanks Midd

Twin Defeat Sets Panthers Back In State Title Competition

BALL TEAM LOSES GAME ON MONDAY

The Panther ball squad came out on the rough end of things again this week, losing to St. Michael's on Thursday at Winooski park, 9-7, to the Vermont Catamounts on Saturday to the tune of 6-0, and to St. Lawrence, 4-0, on Monday.

For the first two innings of the St. Mike's game it looked as if it were going to be a field day for Midd because a combination of errors, stolen bases, and singles managed to pile up for them the convincing lead of 4-0. The first of the third also saw another score for Middlebury, resulting from a walk, a stolen base, a single, and a St. Michael's error.

St. Michael's Rallies

Then in the last half of the third, St. Michael's really began to hit the ball, and a double by Stickles scored two runs for the Purple. Fitzgibbons knocked out a long fly to left center where Ed Shea and Sam Bertuzzi crashed into each other, losing the ball and allowing Stickles to score from second. A single then scored Fitzgibbons leaving the Purple at the short end of a 5-4 score.

The top of the fourth brought in another run for Midd and the St. Michael's pitcher, Dillon, was called in favor of freshman Jim Flahive. The Purple then tied it up at six-all when Day passed two men, and two more knocked out singles.

In the sixth box, St. Michael's jumped ahead with another run, but Middlebury came right back again with singles by Day and Turner and a wild pitch to tie up the score at seven-all.

In the last of the eighth Poirier, a pinch hitter for Flahive, drew a walk, Mack bunted to the third baseman and rounded second, while Poirier scored on a single to left field by Leahy. Guter then singled to send Mack around the diamond to score the final St. Michael's run of the ball game.

Saturday, the eleventh, saw the Midd squad go down to defeat once more, before a hard-hitting, snappy U.V.M. team. A barrage of two singles, a double, and a triple in the first inning put the Catamounts in the lead with three runs, and from there on it was clear sailing for them.

In the second box neither team hit, but in the third the Burlington boys again flooded the Panthers with a volley of hits that netted them another three runs, and the ball game was as good as over.

The U.V.M. pitcher, Akley, held the Middmen down to no hits at all until the eighth inning. Then with two down, Arnold got his eye on the ball and knocked out a single to deep short which he beat to the initial sack by inches. In the ninth with two out again Van singled between first and second, thus chalking up the second and last Middlebury hit of the game.

Failure to hit with men on base cost the Middlebury baseball team a 4-0 defeat at the hands of the St. Lawrence baseball squad last Monday afternoon.

SPORTS OF THE WEEK

BASEBALL

A strong Vermont team, victorious over Midd in their first contest last Saturday, will meet the Panther nine at Porter Field this Thursday afternoon at 3:30. U. V. M. has developed rapidly in the past several weeks, after a rather poor start.

On Friday, Springfield college brings its baseball team to Middlebury for a return engagement. Down at Springfield, the home team went on a batting spree—while Midd was kept well under control by their hurler, Schmidt. Saturday afternoon, Midd fans will get a chance to see the Norwich batting corps in action on the college diamond.

TRACK

On Saturday, May 17, a picked squad of Blue and White cindermen will travel to Worcester, Mass., to compete in the Eastern Intercollegiates.

Those men making the trip will be Hicks, Wood, Butler, Bates, Lundrigan, Morehouse, Rasmussen and Wittlin.

TENNIS

The tennis team, last year's state champs, open this year's campaign for the state title Thursday when they meet Vermont on the Hepburn courts. They will also be out to help make up for the double-barreled defeat handed the track and baseball teams last Saturday. On Saturday, the netmen meet Norwich here, and next Tuesday they complete their home season in a match with St. Michaels.

GOLF

Next Monday, the golf team travels over to Northfield to engage the Norwich linksmen on their home course. On Wednesday, the procedure will be reversed, and Norwich will come to Middlebury to play our golfers at the Country club. This will be the last home match for the Panthers.

This afternoon the team will face the golfers of Union college for the second time this season, with hopes of repeating their victory over the Garnet and Grey.

Larries Edge Out 5-4 Tennis Victory

Singles Supremacy Fails To Provide Margin For Netmen

Inclement weather on Friday, and superior St. Lawrence doubles combinations on Saturday, conspired to make last weekend a disappointing one for the Middlebury tennis team. For after having been rained out at Colgate, Coach Cornwall's men finished on the short end of a 5 to 4 score in the match against St. Lawrence, played there.

Midd's supremacy in the singles encounters was not sufficient, for in sweeping all three doubles matches, the St. Lawrence players wiped out a 4-2 Middlebury lead to take the match.

Jack Crawford, captain and number one man for Middlebury, led off and made a very creditable showing against Seeler, nationally ranked St. Lawrence star. Seeler, a member of the Junior Davis Cup squad, took the match 6-3, 6-3.

Haines Wins Again

Lew Haines continued his winning ways in the second singles position, and won his third straight match, disposing of Dentzler without much trouble, 6-2, 6-3.

The lower-ranking men seemed more evenly divided as is evidenced by the closer scores. Tom Macdonald prevailed over his opponent with scores of 6-3, 3-6, 7-5, in a hard-fought duel. Charlie Proctor took Bartlett in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4. While Bob Maxwell was being beaten by Lurch, at the number five post, freshman Hal Melvin was making a fine showing in his first varsity singles encounter. After dropping the first set, he came back strongly to gain a conclusive win. His scores were 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

It was St. Lawrence all the way in doubles. The Middmen were not even able to take a set from them.

MIKE TALK By HALLIGAN

Last Saturday morning we felt swell—we were on our way to Burlington Vermont, to watch the Middlebury track and baseball teams perform against the Catamounts of the University of Vermont. Yes-siree, as we drove along route seven we were literally sitting on top of the world—but that was then.

* * * * * *

Not that we didn't enjoy ourselves—but it is tough to watch one's college compete twice in the same afternoon and lose both times.

* * * * * *

We don't know how many of you feel the same way, but we just cannot get rid of the feeling that Middlebury is always the underdog no matter who provides the opposition. We are always possessed by the feeling that the Panthers are in reality just a bunch of boys—not to be labled "powerful aggregations," they never win "easily", seldom are they "overwhelming favorites". No, the sports dictionary which concerns the Blue and White includes such words as "hard fighting", and when victories are scored usually "inspired" is included in the writeup. It's an odd situation, but somehow we cannot help feeling that way.

* * * * * *

Perhaps it is because we know the boys on the athletic teams so well that they do not impress us, it might be that the attitude originates in our "kidding" of the athletes, and then too, we are reminded daily of the outstanding feats done by the more highly publicized college athletes. But whatever the reason be it always seems that a Middlebury fan roots like the very devil for his teams, and neither the players nor the fans ever assume a supremely confident attitude which is sometimes prevalent among our opponents.

* * * * * *

But through every dark cloud shining, there's a silver lining, and I suppose the silver lining in our minds was Jack Hicks, and rightly so. Last Saturday night we were talking to two of Jack's fraternity brothers, and in spite of their position we knew it was not prejudice that made them say—"This season he has done all that could be expected of a captain."

* * * * * *

And so he has—thus far he has run in six events, and he has won them all. Of course he hasn't turned in 9.9s in the hundred as he did freshman year—but don't forget for a minute that Hicksy is literally running on one leg, that he has had to hold himself to short, choppy steps instead of being able to stretch out to his full speed—because if he did it's a good chance that he would pull his muscle once again. So we wish the best of luck to one of Midd's most valiant captains when he competes for the last time this weekend in the Easterns.

While we're on the subject we might add that Jack "Spider" Bates and Artie Rasmussen are two other silver linings. Those two boys certainly make track meets interesting, because they always provide the unexpected. Now we all know that their pet event is the hurdles—Jack shines in the 220 lows, and Ras takes a shot at both the highs and the lows.

To us that would seem sufficient, but lo and behold, who should come dashing home in second place in the hundred but Ras, and who should be running shoulder to shoulder with Mott of U.V.M. in the 220 but Spider? Certainly this should be enough—but no, as the meet drew to a close we saw the two of them leaping through space over at the broad jumping pit. Heigh ho, I wonder if they can sew?

Strength In Field Events Gains Triumph For Catamounts

HICKS WINS BOTH 100, 220 YD. DASHES

Amassing fifty two and a half points in the field events, the track team of the University of Vermont defeated Middlebury last Saturday afternoon by the score of 74½ to 60½ in a duel meet held at Centennial Field in Burlington, Vt.

The two teams were closely matched, and throughout the day the score remained very close, with the final outcome being settled by the results of the final two events. Needing but seven points out of a possible eighteen in the hammer and broad jump, U. V. M. crashed through with two firsts and a second to garner thirteen markers and the victory.

Captain Jack Hicks of the Panther squad completed his season of duel meets undefeated, and he came dashing home in frist place in both the 100 and 220. Close behind him in the century came Rasmussen and Hollister of the Blue and White which gave Middlebury a clean sweep in this event. In the 220 he had first place all to himself, but Jack Bates thrilled the Panther followers with a grueling duel with Mott, the Catamount sprint ace, falling into third position only in the final few yards.

Mile Thriller

Runnng far in front of the pack, Freo Webster of Vermont and Stebbins of Middebury engaged in one of the most exciting mile runs of the year. Webster took the lead at the gun, and for four long laps he held off the threats of Stebbins, as the freshman star endeavored to pass him. In spite of the slow time (4:46) this proved to be one of the most enjoyable events of the day.

It was a different story in the two mile. Once again a U. V. M. man got out in front at the start, St. Mary of the Catamount team held a steady pace to lead the distance men for six and one half laps, but at this point Hal Parker of the Blue and White started his drive for the finish and when the runners crossed the line he was far out in front.

In the hurdle events Mott of U. V. M. broke the Vermont record of the 120 highs when he flashed across the finish line scant steps in front of Rasmussen and Wood of Middlebury in 15.8.

Jack Bates continued his excellent performances in the 220 low hurdles by turning in an easy victory in 24.7 time over Mott of U. V. M. who barely

GOLFERS LOSE TO LOCAL FOURSOME

Last Saturday afternoon on the local course the Panther golf team met defeat at the hands of the local Country club team by the score of 4½-1½.

The Middmen, with Captain Don Chapman playing number one position, had the disadvantage of being minus one of their best men, Dixie Davis, who regularly fills number two position being laid up with poison ivy. Chuck Scott filled in at number four and Duke Diefendorf and Sandy Young moved up one position respectively.

Number one foursome was composed of Don Chapman and Duke who were paired off against Dud Phinney and George Zelenakas of the local quartet. The second four consisted of Sandy Young and Chuck Scott competing against Bill Craig and Howard Cormier.

At the completion of the first nine holes Chappie was one down, Duke was two down, Chuck was four down, while Sandy, to save the Midd reputation for the day, was three up. (These scores are computed from low ball totals for the first round of nine holes.)

In the last three matches of the day the Country clubbers easily managed to score another sweep and thus bring the count up to its final peak of 4½ points for them and a mere 1½ for the varsity.

PICNICS TO BE HELD BY '43, '44 CLASSES

Appearing on the freshman program will be baseball games for both the men and women. Contestants in the former of these games will be rival teams from Hepburn and Gifford halls, while the women's teams will be chosen at random. After this those who care to will finish the evening at the inn dance.

At the sophomore picnic, baseball and other games will be played. Jean E. Jordan '43 and Aldom H. Scott '43 will make up the commissary committee. This picnic is to be the second annual one held by the class of '43. Last year's picnic was also held on Chipman hill, with supper and softball games beginning the evening which was ended by a serenade to Pres. Paul D. Moody.

beat out Rasmussen for second place. Lundrigan who gained 10½ points in their respective events, not a mark was made in the field.

Marty Wittlin continued undefeated by tossing the shot 42 ft. three-quarters of an inch, and Tommy Rooney broad jumped 21 ft., further than any man on the Middlebury squad thus far this year, but his efforts still left him two and one half inches short of Goss of U. V. M.

CAMPUS Subscription Price Reduction Offered For Graduating Seniors

The graduating seniors will once again be the beneficiaries of a substantial reduction in the subscription price of the 1941-1942 CAMPUS, according to Marvin E. Holdredge '42, business manager of the publication.

Members of the class of 1941 will be able to effect a considerable saving by taking advantage of this opportunity to subscribe to next year's CAMPUS at the price of two dollars instead of the regular subscription price of three dollars per year.

This customary offer is designed to encourage the maintenance of interest on the part of the new graduates, not only concerning college activities, but also in alumni affairs.

The blank form below is to be filled out by those interested.

Professor Schmidt Hurt While Working Beneath Auto Monday Afternoon

Prof. Bruno M. Schmidt, of the geology department, suffered two broken collar-bones Monday afternoon while working on his car. He was taken to Porter hospital, where his condition was reported as satisfactory.

Professor Schmidt had jacked his car up and was lying underneath the chassis, repairing a spring, when the car suddenly slipped off the jack, knocking him on the chest. He was taken to the hospital, where x-rays taken disclosed a fracture of the collar-bones. His condition is not serious, but he will probably be forced to remain in the hospital a week or ten days. After that, it will be three or four weeks before he can return to normal activity.

He had just returned home last week from a tour of South America. He has been on sabbatical leave since February.

loaded the bases, but upon each occassion the varsity batsmen failed in the pinch, and a grand total of eighteen men were left on base by Middlebury.

The Larries tallied three times in the opening half of the sixth inning on four hits, one of which dropped in the midst of three Panther fielders, and thus completed their total for the game.

George Wiemann pitched the complete game for Coach Kelly's team and did a rather fine job of it, although he did allow eleven hits he was in difficulty only in the sixth inning. Sherwood, the visitors hurler, limited the Panthers to seven singles. Bob Sheehan getting three, and succeeded in extending Midds total of consecutive scoreless innings to twenty-two.

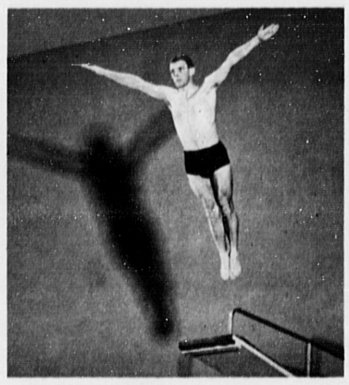
Speed Camera Records Diver's Perfect Form

David W. Howard, captain of the varsity swimming team of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and recent winner of the junior national A. A. U. high board diving championship, caught by high-speed photography during an exhibition dive

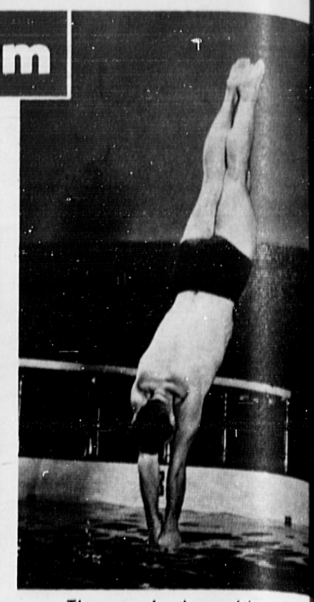
This photograph was made by Professor Harold E. Edgerton with his high-speed photographic lights at an exposure of 1 150,000 of a second. It reveals in remarkable detail the play of the diver's leg, arm and shoulder muscles.

1 A heavy spring catapults Howard from the 10-foot board.



2 Feet are placed together at once. Here's where poise counts.

3 At the top of his arc, Howard levels out his body, arches his back gracefully.



4 The arms, body, and legs form a straight line as he nears the water.
